Overview & Current Events

RPT Realty is a Real Estate Investment Trust (REIT) engaged in the business of owning and operating a national portfolio of open-air shopping destinations principally located in the top U.S. markets. The company's portfolio currently consists of 43 wholly-owned shopping centers, 13 shopping centers owned through its grocery anchored joint venture, and 49 retail properties owned through its net lease joint venture. As of its latest filings, the company's pro-rata share of the aggregate portfolio was 94.9% leased. RPT realty generates around $220 million in annual rental revenues and is headquartered in New York, New York.

On August 2nd, 2023, RPT Realty reported its Q2 results for the period ending June 30th, 2023. For the quarter, total revenues came in at $51.1 million, down 7.7% year-over-year. Specifically, rental income, the company's biggest revenue contributor, fell 10% to $48.2 million. Higher management and fee income marginally offset this decline. FFO came in at $24.1 million, or $0.25 per diluted share, compared to $22.0 million, or $0.23 per diluted share, for the same period in 2022.

The growth in FFO was driven by higher same-property NOI, which grew 0.3% year-over-year. The increase was primarily driven by higher base rent growth of 3.4% after adjusting for abatements associated with offsetting reversals of rent not probable of collection. Blended re-leasing spreads on comparable leases were 21.1%, with an annualized base rent of $19.34 per square foot. Re-leasing spreads on 12 comparable new and 58 renewal leases were 56% and 10.7%, respectively. Management affirmed its FY2023 FFO per diluted share guidance to be between $0.97 and $1.01.

Growth on a Per-Share Basis

RPT Realty's performance has been rather stable over the past decade. That said, the company has not delivered meaningful FFO/share growth, with retail locations, especially shopping malls, struggling to attract satisfactory rent growth levels, and frequently suffering from soft occupancy levels. Going forward, FFO/share is to potentially be powered by RPT's acquisition pipeline and rental hikes.

Specifically, since the start of 2021, RPT has acquired over $1.1 billion of shopping centers across its three investment platforms in high-growth target markets of Boston, Atlanta, Nashville, and Tampa. Boston, in fact, which is a high-growth market, just recently moved from no exposure in RPTs portfolio to its second-largest market.

The company's strong new lease spreads as of recently could indicate further growth in NOI going forward. Still, we remain prudent due to the uncertainty surrounding the industry. Hence, we forecast FFO/share growth of 2.5% through 2028. In terms of the dividend, RPT slashed it during the Great Financial Crisis and once again last year amid COVID-19 adversely impacting shopping centers. We have utilized an 8% dividend CAGR in the medium-term, expecting payouts to gradually recover closer to RPT's FFO/share levels.

Valuation Analysis

| Year       | 2013 | 2014 | 2015 | 2016 | 2017 | 2018 | 2019 | 2020 | 2021 | 2022 | Now  | 2028 |
|------------|------|------|------|------|------|------|------|------|------|------|------|------|
| Avg. P/FFO | 13.3 | 17.9 | 11.4 | 13.3 | 9.4  | 11.0 | 12.5 | 8.6  | 14.7 | 11.2 | 10.7 | 10.5 |
| Avg. Yld.  | 4.5% | 4.4% | 4.6% | 5.6% | 6.4% | 6.9% | 7.2% | 2.8% | 3.1% | 4.6% | 5.3% | 7.0% |

RPT's P/FFO has been rather consistent over the past decade, hovering between the high-single and low double-digits. The current multiple of 10.7 appears to be relatively in line with our fair P/FFO of 10.5. Our estimate is still below RPT's decade average of 12.3 to account for higher interest rates. The dividend yield could advance if management proceeds to raise the dividend towards its pre-pandemic levels, but it is already notable.

Safety, Quality, Competitive Advantage, & Recession Resiliency

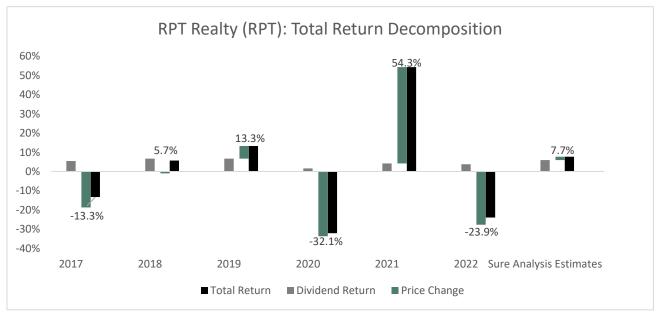

| Year   | 2013 | 2014 | 2015 | 2016 | 2017 | 2018 | 2019 | 2020 | 2021 | 2022 | 2023       | 2028 |
| Payout | 61%  | 82%  | 60%  | 64%  | 66%  | 72%  | 88%  | 27%  | 46%  | 51%  | 57% | 73%  |

While RPT's dividend has been slashed twice since 2007, we consider the current payout levels rather comfortable, likely supporting modest dividend growth in the medium term as well. The company does not possess any particular competitive advantages. However, it does showcase some attractive characteristics. For instance, over 70% of the portfolio has a grocery-anchored component. And, due to its credit-worthy tenants, the occupancy and leasing rates in Q2 2023 stood at 91.6% and 94.9%, respectively. These metrics held up relatively well even during the pandemic. Nonetheless, a prolonged recession or events that would damage retail sales could severely impact the company.

Final Thoughts & Recommendation

RPT's potential to grow in the medium-term appears plausible, but the environment lately has certainly not helped its mission. The stock's performance has been rather underwhelming historically, while 2020's dividend cut illustrated RPT's vulnerability during challenging conditions. Assuming a relatively stable valuation over the medium-term, combined with the rather notable yield of 5.3% and our growth estimates, we forecast annualized return potential of 7.7% through 2028. Accordingly, RPT earns a hold rating.
