Overview & Current Events

Equity Residential is one of the largest U.S. publicly traded owners and operators of high-quality rental apartment properties with a portfolio primarily located in urban and dense suburban communities. The trust's properties are located in affluent areas around Boston, New York, Washington, D.C., Southern California, San Francisco, Seattle, and Denver.

On April 23, 2024, Equity Residential (EQR) released its Q1 2024 results, showcasing a robust financial performance that exceeded market expectations. The company reported earnings per share (EPS) of $0.93, surpassing the analyst estimates which were pegged at $0.91. This performance represents a significant increase compared to the previous year's EPS of $0.56. The revenue for the quarter stood at $730.82 million, slightly above the analyst forecast of $729.83 million, marking a year-over-year growth of 3.7%.

Equity Residential demonstrated strong operational efficiency with its funds from operations (FFO) reaching $0.87 per share, reflecting a stable growth trajectory. Additionally, the normalized funds from operations (NFFO) per share grew by 6.9% to $0.93, indicating enhanced underlying operational performance. The company's same store net operating income (NOI) also saw an increase, rising by 5.5% driven by a 4.1% uptick in same-store revenue. These figures underscore Equity Residential's effective asset management and favorable market conditions.

Strategically, the company continued to realign its portfolio, selling three properties totaling 504 units for $248.5 million. Moreover, Equity Residential repurchased and retired 652,452 common shares at an average price of $58.95, totaling approximately $38.5 million, signaling strong confidence in its intrinsic value. The company also reported the lowest quarterly same-store turnover rate in its history at 8.6%, which highlights the strong tenant retention and the desirability of its locations.

Equity residential properties are located in some of America's most affluent markets, which results in relatively robust rental collections due to the high quality of the trust's tenants. Additionally, these locations have consistently seen increasing pricing trends. We forecast FFO/share CAGR of 5.2% in the medium-term, following the strong rebound in residential occupancy and overall pricing. The trust had slashed its dividend back during the great financial crisis. In 2016, the base rate dividend was "cut" again due to the trust divesting some of its non-core assets and paying shareholders a massive dividend with the proceeds. Since then, the dividend has grown annually before suffering a slight cut in 2020 due to uncertainty surrounding COVID-19. Moving forward, we expect solid dividend per share growth to continue.

Valuation Analysis

Year	2014	2015	2016	2017	2018	2019	2020	2021	2022	2023	Now	2029
P/FFO	20	20.6	21.7	19.8	19.3	23.8	16.8	29.5	18.1	15.8	17.3	18.0
Avg. Yld.	3.2%	2.9%	14.9%	3.1%	3.4%	2.7%	3.8%	2.7%	3.9%	4.4%	4.0%	3.6%

Due to the stable performance of Equity Residential over the past decade, its shares have traded at a consistent valuation multiple of around 20 times the underlying FFO. However, we have reduced our fair value multiple to 18 times FFO due to rising interest rates. While the trust's performance has recovered in the wake of COVID-19, the stock price remains somewhat undervalued, trading at 17.3 times its forward FFO. As a result, we expect slight valuation multiple expansion over the next half-decade.

Safety, Quality, Competitive Advantage, & Recession Resiliency

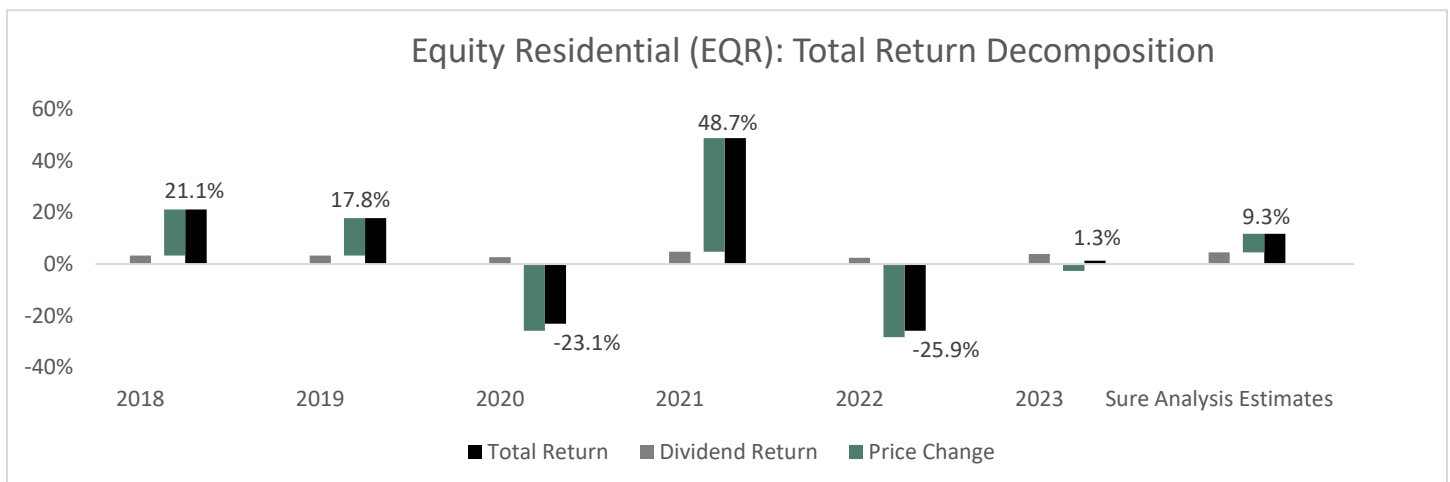

Year	2014	2015	2016	2017	2018	2019	2020	2021	2022	2023	2024	2029
Payout	63%	61%	324%	62%	66%	64%	65%	81%	71%	70%	70%	64%

The business is quite defensive against recessions given that residential real estate is an essential service and moving from one residence to another is generally viewed as highly inconvenient. As a result, tenants tend to prioritize paying their rent over non-essential spending during an economic downturn. Moreover, EQR's balance sheet is quite strong, and its payout ratio is quite conservative at current levels. As a result, its dividend should be sustainable through an economic downturn and the REIT will likely be able to continue growing its dividend for the foreseeable future. Overall, the trust operates in a highly competitive market. However, management's proven expertise should partially offset this risk. A prolonged recession in which individuals see their salaries declining could easily damage the trust's performance following reduced rents, poor rental collections, and possible move-outs to cheaper areas.

Final Thoughts & Recommendation

Equity Residential has produced strong returns over the years and its multifamily real estate portfolio is high quality and well-managed. Overall, we expect annualized total returns of around 9.3% over the next half-decade, powered by its estimated growth, valuation multiple expansion, and the 4.0% dividend yield. As a result, we rate EQR a Hold.
