Overview & Current Events

American Financial Group (AFG) is an insurance holding company that is engaged in property and casualty insurance, focusing on specialized commercial products for businesses. In 2021, the company completed the sale of its annuity business for $3.8 billion in cash. In business for over 150 years, this $11 billion market cap company has regularly increased its quarterly dividend since 2006.

AFG reported Q2 2024 earnings on August 6th, 2024. For the quarter, earnings-per-share was $2.49, above the $2.34 per share that the company reported for the same period in 2023. During the quarter the company paid $0.71 per share in regular quarterly dividends.

The management team highlighted the continued significant excess capital on the company's balance sheet and their intention to continue issuing regular and special dividends, as well as to conduct opportunistic share buybacks. Additionally, they intend to deploy some capital into AFG's core businesses as they identify the potential for healthy, profitable organic growth, and opportunities to expand its specialty niche business through acquisitions and start-ups that meet their target return thresholds.

The Co-CEOs, Craig and Carl Lindner, were satisfied by the annualized core operating return on equity of 18.5% and increased investment income as a result of the strong underwriting margins and higher interest rates.

The company's book value per share stands at $52.25, and the company's growth of book value plus dividends during the quarter stood at 4.7%.

Insurance companies are stable non-cyclical businesses with generally reliable revenue and income streams that allow them to pay consistent dividends and return capital to shareholders. American Financial Group fits this mold precisely, and its performance over the past decade shows consistently growing revenues and earnings. As a mature company in a mature industry, we don't expect this situation to change.

While the above market average growth of their earnings and dividends will likely slow down in the next few years, we still expect the company to be able to outperform as a result of AFG's profitable specialty insurance business. The specialty insurance business should have more growth opportunities than the consumer facing insurance segments.

As a result, we expect earnings to grow 8% annually until 2029, where earnings-per-share would stand at around $16.16 per share, and its quarterly dividend to be around $4.17 per share.

Valuation Analysis

Year	2014	2015	2016	2017	2018	2019	2020	2021	2022	2023	2024	2029
Avg. P/E	12.1	12.3	12.2	15.1	12.9	11.8	9.1	10.6	10.7	11.8	11.9	13.0

American Financial Group has traded with an average P/E of about 12 times earnings in the past decade. Given its strong growth and history of returning capital to shareholders, we would expect this company to be re-rated slightly up to 13 times earnings by 2028.

Safety, Quality, Competitive Advantage, & Recession Resiliency

Payout	19%	19%	19%	20%	17%	19%	22%	18%	24%	81%	26%	26%

The combination of regular quarterly dividends with special dividends mean that the company can quickly return capital to shareholders in special cases and events, like the recent divestiture of their annuities business, without restricting their ongoing ability to take on new opportunities. Additionally, the sale of the annuities business also helps the company focus on its more profitable property and casualty insurance divisions, which have better growth prospects and more reliable earnings.

Overall, the quarterly dividends are well covered by the company's earnings and are unlikely to be cut anytime soon, however the special dividends will fluctuate as the company's business needs evolve.

Final Thoughts & Recommendation

With a deceptively low 2.2% dividend yield, and an expected 8% earnings growth, we estimate that the total return for AFG will be around 11.7% annually. However, this company's special dividends may provide an additional tailwind not accounted for in this forecast, and so it is likely that returns could be significantly better. Shares earn a buy rating.
