Overview & Current Events

MPLX, LP is a master limited partnership that was formed by Marathon Petroleum (MPC) in 2012. The business operates in two segments: Logistics and Storage – which relates to crude oil and refined petroleum products – and Gathering and Processing – which relates to natural gas and natural gas liquids (NGLs). On July 30th, 2019, MPLX acquired Andeavor Logistics LP. The $43 billion limited partnership generated $5.3 billion in distributable cash flow in 2023.

On October 31st, 2023, MPLX announced a quarterly distribution of $0.85 per unit, which marks a 10% raise.

In early August, MPLX reported (8/6/24) financial results for the second quarter of fiscal 2024. Adjusted EBITDA and distributable cash flow (DCF) per share grew 8% and 7%, respectively, over the prior year's quarter, primarily thanks to higher tariff rates and increased gas volumes. MPLX maintained a healthy consolidated debt to adjusted EBITDA ratio of 3.4x and a solid distribution coverage ratio of 1.6. We expect the positive business momentum to remain in place this year and thus we still expect record DCF per share of about $5.40 this year.

Growth on a Per-Share Basis

Ideally you would use distributable cash flow as a leading metric for a master limited partnership, but MPLX's DCF history is skewed by the general partner's (GP) incentive distribution rights (IDRs). In February of 2018 the parent company, Marathon Petroleum Corporation, dropped down assets and exchanged its GP interest, including IDRs, for a larger portion of MPLX (MPC's interest now equals ~63%). Moving forward this should make the reporting clearer, but for now we have elected to show historical cash flow per share (which is not a perfect measure either). For 2018 (and moving forward) we are reporting DCF.

In general, pipelines tend to have a stronghold in terms of extracting economic rents. Building pipelines requires years of approvals and ongoing regulation. As such, the incumbent positions enjoy "toll-booth" type business models, with a good portion of their revenue fixed via fee-based and "take or pay" agreements. MPLX in particular has a strong position in the Marcellus / Utica region, with long-term contracts from Marathon.

The COVID-19 pandemic and significant drop in commodity prices in 2020 impacted all energy companies, but pipelines were better insulated from the volatility. We expect 2% average annual growth of DCF per unit over the next five years.

MPLX does not lend itself to a nice average historical valuation, especially with both cash flow per share and the share price jumping around significantly. With the elimination of the IDRs, the cash available to unit holders should be a more accurate reflection of value moving forward. We assume a fair price-to-DCF ratio of 7.0 for MPLX, which is currently trading at a price-to-DCF ratio of 8.0. If the stock trades at its fair valuation level in five years, it will incur a -2.5% annualized drag.

Safety, Quality, Competitive Advantage, & Recession Resiliency

Year	2014	2015	2016	2017	2018	2019	2020	2021	2022	2023	2024	2029
Payout	66%	230%	143%	89%	62%	59%	67%	59%	59%	60%	63%	63%

MPLX's industry generally holds competitive advantages as a result of the toll-booth model of pipelines. While growth potential may be limited, the need for the company's infrastructure is certainly present.

With MPLX in particular we are encouraged by the company self-funding on the equity side and getting rid of the IDRs. In the last five years, MPLX has had distribution coverage ratios of 1.51x, 1.46x, 1.64x, 1.6x and 1.6x. Meanwhile, the company's total debt to adjusted EBITDA has been 4.1x, 3.9x, 3.7x, 3.5x and 3.3x during the same time period (generally MLP's are shooting for a ratio under 5x). In addition, the revenues of MPLX are reliable thanks to the long-term contracts with parent company Marathon. Overall, the 7.9% distribution yield of MPLX is safe in the absence of a prolonged recession.

Final Thoughts & Recommendation

The stock of MPLX has rallied to a new 8-year high. While we are cautious with the anticipated growth rate and note the MLP structure for tax purposes, the dividend yield looks attractive. We expect the stock to offer a 6.8% average annual return over the next five years thanks to its 7.9% distribution yield and its 2% growth rate, partly offset by a -2.5% valuation headwind. The stock maintains its hold rating.
