Overview & Current Events

Bank of Nova Scotia (often called Scotiabank) is one of the Big Five Canadian banks. Scotiabank reports in four core business segments – Canadian Banking, International Banking, Global Wealth Management, and Global Banking & Markets. The bank stock is cross-listed on the Toronto Stock Exchange and the New York Stock Exchange using ‘BNS’ as the ticker. We’ll be using U.S. dollars throughout this report unless otherwise stated.

Scotiabank reported fiscal Q3 2024 results on 08/27/24. For the quarter, revenue rose 3.7% to C$8.4 billion, while non-interest expenses rose 8.6% to C$4.9 billion. Provision for credit losses (“PCL”) increased by 28% year over year (“YOY”) to C$1.1 billion, which weighed on earnings. As a result, net income fell 13% to C$1.9 billion and diluted earnings per share (“EPS”) fell 17% to C$1.41.

The fiscal year-to-date results show a bigger picture. Revenue rose 5.0% to C$25.1 billion. Non-interest expenses increased by 5.9% to C$14.4 billion, while PCL rose 39% to C$3 billion. The PCL as a percentage of average net loans & acceptances was 0.55%, up from 0.42% a year ago, whereas the PCL on impaired loans as a percentage of average net loans & acceptances was 0.51%, up from 0.38% a year ago. So, the impaired loans are getting close to its reserve levels. Net income came in at C$6.2 billion, which was 1.8% higher and diluted EPS of C$4.66 was down 1.5%.

The bank’s capital position improved – the Common Equity Tier 1 ratio was 13.3% versus 12.7% a year ago. Scotiabank’s adjusted return on equity (ROE) decreased to 11.3% from 12.1% a year ago. We maintain our BNS’s fiscal 2024 EPS estimate at US$4.81.

Scotiabank’s 10-year EPS growth rate was just north of 2.4% in Canadian dollars and essentially flat when converted to USD. Inflation and interest rates are higher than in recent years, which don’t bode well for the economy, as both business and consumer spending would be dampened. Moreover, BNS could have more volatile earnings because of its exposure to international markets and different currencies. The bank’s competitive advantage is in its international growth strategy, as it is willing to acquire growth outside of its primary markets. When the global economic environment improves, its international strategy should be an advantage for growth. Scotiabank’s international focus is on Latin America geographies like Mexico, Peru, and Chile. For the time being, this global strategy is weighing on its results, but its juicy dividend is still sustainable from its earnings.

The bank has kept the quarterly dividend unchanged for 6 consecutive quarters so far, suggesting it’s facing some challenges. A relatively strong USD versus CAD would weaken its results when translated into USD. For now, we estimate that BNS will have an EPS growth rate of 4.8% and a DPS growth rate of 4.0% through 2029. We set our 2024 dividend estimate based on the forex rate at writing.

Keep in mind that the fluctuations in the forex between U.S. Dollars and Canadian Dollars will affect the effective yield for U.S. shareholders. As a Canadian stock, BNS's dividends may be subject to a 15% dividend withholding tax for U.S. investors. This tax can potentially be avoided by investing in BNS through a retirement account.

Valuation Analysis

Year	2014	2015	2016	2017	2018	2019	2020	2021	2022	2023	Now	2029
Avg. P/E	11.7	9.9	13.0	12.5	10.0	11.4	9.6	12.4	10.2	8.9	10.5	10.5
Avg. Yld.	3.8%	4.6%	4.0%	3.6%	4.7%	4.6%	6.2%	4.7%	5.1%	6.0%	6.2%	6.0%

From fiscal 2014-2023 and 2019-2023, Scotiabank traded at an average price-to-earnings ratio of about 11.0 and 10.5, respectively. We use the more conservative P/E of 10.5 as our target due to the more negative outlook. Using our 2024 EPS estimate, the bank currently trades at a price-to-earnings ratio of 10.5, which makes the stock fairly valued. BNS's yield is above average compared to the market, making it appealing to income investors.

Safety, Quality, Competitive Advantage, & Recession Resiliency

Year	2014	2015	2016	2017	2018	2019	2020	2021	2022	2023	2024	2029
Payout	49%	51%	48%	46%	48%	49%	64%	46%	50%	64%	65%	63%

During the Great Recession, Bank of Nova Scotia increased its dividend and only froze its dividend in fiscal year 2010 before resuming dividend growth afterwards. Similarly, the OSFI regulatory restriction led to a dividend freeze of 9 quarters because of the pandemic (and potential impacts to the economy). The bank came out with a dividend increase as soon as the ban was lifted. BNS normally has a payout ratio of around 50% that aligns with other big Canadian banks. Its payout ratio was higher than normal in fiscal 2020 due to a higher provision for credit losses from pandemic impacts. BNS's payout ratio is again higher than normal, but we expect it to head towards the 50% range.

Final Thoughts & Recommendation

BNS trades at a lower P/E than the other big Canadian bank stocks because of the higher risk in its international operations. We see total annual returns of about 10.1% annually in the coming years. These returns should accrue from a yield of 6.2%, no valuation change, and 4.8% earnings growth. The high-yield stock earns a "hold" rating today.
