Overview & Current Events

Jack Henry & Associates is a business software & services company that is headquartered in Missouri. It was founded in 1976. The company provides information technology services to the financial services industry, including to more than 1,300 banks as well as other companies, such as insurance corporations.

Jack Henry & Associates reported its fiscal first quarter earnings results on November 5. The company generated revenues of $600 million during the quarter, which was 5% more than the revenues that Jack Henry & Associates generated during the previous year's quarter. Revenues were up 5% on an adjusted basis as well, which was down sequentially. The company was able to increase the revenues for its services and support unit by 4%, which was a higher growth rate compared to the previous quarter. Meanwhile, its processing business saw growth of 7%, with that segment's growth rate being down sequentially.

Jack Henry earned $1.63 on a per-share basis during the first quarter, beating estimates slightly. Management updated its guidance for fiscal 2025, calling for adjusted revenue to come in between $2.37 billion and $2.39 billion, which indicates solid growth of around 7%. Earnings-per-share are forecasted to come in at around $5.78 to $5.87 in fiscal 2025. This indicates that earnings-per-share will grow by a nice 11% this year.

Growth on a Per-Share Basis

Jack Henry & Associates has a compelling earnings-per-share growth track record. Over the last decade, Jack Henry & Associates' earnings-per-share grew, on average, by 8% per year. Earnings growth has been relatively reliable in the past, as Jack Henry & Associates' earnings-per-share grew during almost every year over the last decade, even during the pandemic, with just one minor profit pullback between 2018 and 2019.

In the past, profit growth has been driven by rising revenues to a large degree, while the company was also able to grow its margins to some extent over the years. Margin growth was made possible by the fact that Jack Henry & Associates benefits from solid operating leverage. Due to a relatively high portion of fixed costs, revenue increases allowed for margin expansion during most years.

In the long run, the company should continue to benefit from operating leverage, which is why we believe that there is a good chance that profits will grow faster than revenues. Jack Henry's industry keeps growing, thus the revenue growth outlook is positive. Even without market share gains, the company should benefit from a growing top line. Between rising revenues, some potential for further margin expansion, and a positive impact from share repurchases, Jack Henry should be able to grow its earnings-per-share at a high single-digit rate going forward.

Valuation Analysis

Year	2015	2016	2017	2018	2019	2020	2021	2022	2023	2024	Now	2030
Avg. P/E	24.1	24.8	29.1	43.8	37.1	47.7	40.1	37.2	33.1	31.2	30.4	25.0

Jack Henry & Associates is a high-quality growth company. Shares had been trading at a more inexpensive valuation a decade ago, but the stock has become pricier since then. The company currently is valued with an earnings multiple of more than 30, which we do not deem justified. The current high valuation will result in a meaningful headwind for the company's total returns over the coming years, we believe.

Safety, Quality, Competitive Advantage, & Recession Resiliency

Year	2015	2016	2017	2018	2019	2020	2021	2022	2023	2024	2025	2030
Payout	36.3%	34.0%	37.6%	37.3%	43.8%	44.6%	43.2%	39.7%	41.4%	42.1%	37.7%	39.5%

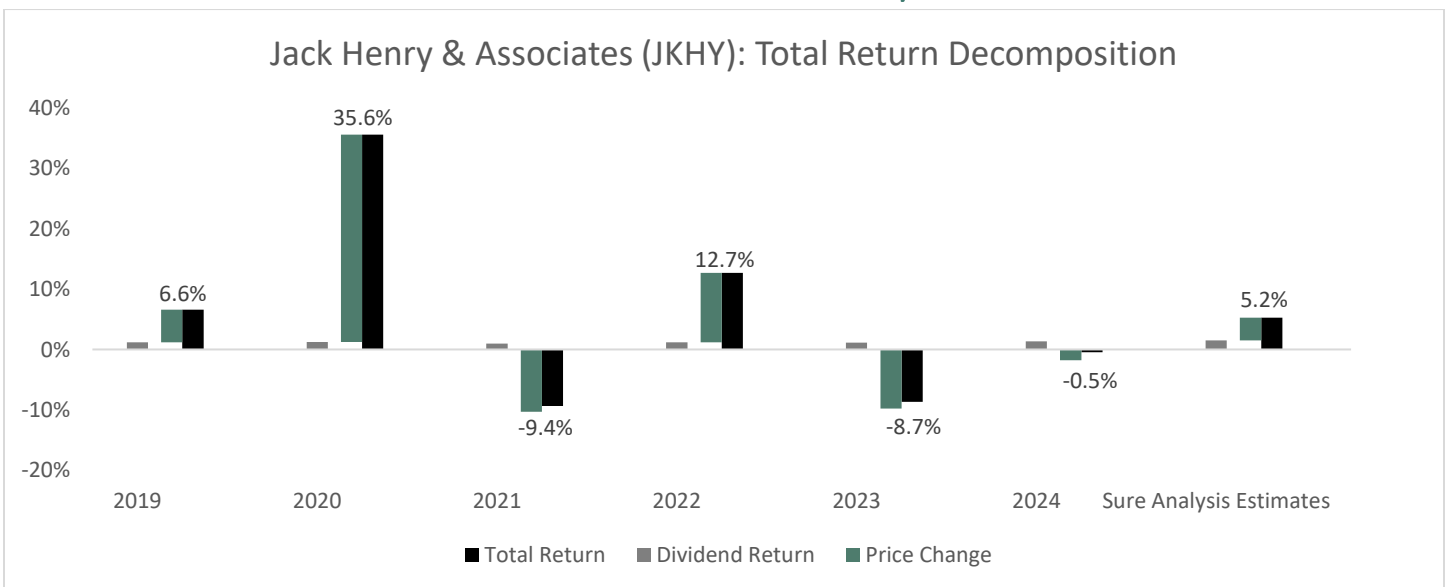

Jack Henry & Associates has raised its dividend at a compelling pace over the last decade, which was not primarily a result of an increase in the company's dividend payout ratio, but rather driven by earnings growth primarily. Jack Henry & Associates pays out roughly 40% of its net profits, which is why the dividend looks relatively safe. It is likely that Jack Henry & Associates will be able to raise its dividend during recessions or economic downturns, as this is what the company did during the Great Recession, too.

Jack Henry & Associates has shown that it operates a recession-resistant business model. The company was able to generate earnings-per-share growth during every year through the Great Recession. Jack Henry & Associates' services have high switching costs from the customers' perspective, which creates sticky customers with high lifetime values. The positive growth outlook for the whole industry is why competitive pressures are not a huge problem.

Final Thoughts & Recommendation

Jack Henry & Associates is a high-quality business that generated attractive earnings and dividend growth in the past, which went hand in hand with strong total returns for shareholders. The company's growth outlook over the coming years is robust as well, mainly due to industry tailwinds. Total returns are expected to come in at a solid but not overly attractive level going forward, which is why we rate Jack Henry & Associates a hold for now.
